in the place of F. B. Allen, resigned.

Most of the conductors of the Central of New Jersey are young men, but there are several veterans. Philip Van Arsdale, now running between Communipaw and Newark, has been with the company about thirty years, and he is 50 years old. Theodore Little who runs to Roselle, is scarcely as old thirty he and that he has been in the several thirty years, and he is 50 years old. Theodore Little who runs to Roselle, is scarcely as old thirty years, and he is 50 years old. Theodore Little who runs to he has been in the several thirty years, and he is 50 years old this city, received their training with the Erie road. A mong the freight agents are General Eastern Agent L. B. Greves of the West Shore, General Eastern Agent L. B. Dumont of the Florida Bailway and Transportation Company, and General Agent George W. Carhart of the North Atlantic Steamship Company.

When the third track of the Central Railroad of New Jersey is completed between Jersey City and Bound Brook it will be used for freight, thus leaving the main tracks unimpeded for passenger travel, The work is expected to be completed within thirty days.

Nathan Bawyer, who has run "Observation" engine, 522, for several years, transporting the officials of the New York Central here and there on business, has been on the Hidden of Both and there on business, has been on the Hidden of Both and the handsomest of its kind on any road. It has a cab above the boiler to accommodate half a dozen passengers, reached by winding steps in front.

The trip of Tammany Hall on Monday afternoon over the Central to Albany was made in three hours, which was a quick one, considering that there were welve loaded sleepers and four stops were made. Fifty miles an hour was made most of the way. George Mink was engineer, with engine 89.

The round house of the New York Central at the Grand Central station receives yistis from ninsty-three engines every day. Fifteen of these run through from New York Central at the Grand Central station receives yistis iness in Berlin. A letter written in excellent German, and addressed to his father, Ludwig Gieseke, Oldenburg, was found among his effects. He threatens suicide, and uses this language:

Every hope for me is now gone. I will go now in a cold-hearted State. To you $200 are worth more than the life of a man whom you call your son. I have still hoped you would have pily for me, notwithstanding that I have done wrong in many respects, but you must bear the chief part in it. If I make an end to my life, either tonight or to morrow. I say it openly in your face that you are my murderer. You drove me to death, and no body site. I couldn't bear it any lonesr, notwithstanding that I would like to live: but there is no hope any more. I shall not have a decent burial, but the curse of Heaven may come upon you.

The letter is dated Aug. 29. As Gieseke has no friends here as far as known, the body will probably be buried by the county.

That the selling of stocks yesterday was hiefly for the short account was amply proved by the activity and strength of the market today. The uncertainty about the next dividend on St. Paul common was not relieved, while the rumors concerning the intentions of the directors were not less frequent. At the same time this stock opened at a material advance in sympathy with the previous improvement in London. It advanced steadily to the close of usiness, and nearly recovered the loss made vesterday. It is not at all beyond possibility hat it will continue its upward movement, even in the improbable event of the directors passing the dividend. The general market showed a plain disposition to break away from prospective.

The conditions affecting speculation continue

The conditions an ecting speculation continue to be favorable, and every day shows a growing confidence on the part of the investing and speculative public both here and in Europe. At the moment the course of prices seems to depend upon one stock and that of a company controlled by a speculative Board of Directors. Final sales compare with those of yesterday as follows:

Frobably there is no disease which inflicts so much continuous pain as Rheumatism. When it becomes chronic there are few more difficult to effect a cure. Over no single complaint has Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy won more brilliant victories than Rheumatism. By its use the agunized patient can once use his limbs, and is freed from the chackles that have bound him perhaps for years. Mr. Frank Strait, a well-known merchant of New Hampton, N. While St. Paul maintained the first place, the business in several other stocks was nearly as large, and the total transactions for the day were more widely distributed than usual. In fact, a conspicuous feature of the trading was sact, a conspicuous feature of the trading was the awakening of a large variety of special stocks which have lain dormant for some time.
Pullman's Palace Car gained 2 F cent. under active buying. Hocking Valley advanced nearly as much after its previous gains, while Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Kingston and Fembroke Iron in the Unlisted Department afforded evidence of a broadening interest.
There were no developments sufficient to affect the course of prices. The usual dividend on Manhattan was declared, and the Executive Committee of the Western Union Company recommended the regular dividend of 1.4 F cent. In both cases the earnings would appear to justify an increase in the rate, but the conservative policy on the part of the management is opposed to an increase. The St. Paul directors will meet to-morrow, and, while their decision will probably be kept from the street
until after the close of business, it is incredible that they will decide to neglect the interests of their stockholders. The weather at the West remains favorable to large crops, and since the nubilication of the Government report the conditions have improved. In view of the large business which not only the Granger railroads but the Eastern lines will receive, it would not be improper to make a division of profits, even if prospective.
The conditions affecting speculation continue the awakening of a large variety of special

Sister Mary Bonaventure of the Franciscan Order of Nuns has travelled from Honolulu to Hoboken for the purpose of get-sisters are contented and happy in the Walluky

Almost all of them are pretty well educated, for education is computery in the Sandwich Islands. There are twenty-three Catholic priests under the direction of Bishop Blackmann at Walluku. A good many of the doctors that attend the lepers are Portuguese. There is, however, one Irish doctor there.

Dr. Herold first examined a number of hundred would have supposed he was a liquor dealer. But he was, and his appearance at Chickering Hall was due to the presence of the National Protective Association, which is holdbottles of soda water, and, to his surprise, discovered traces of lead in the residuum after evaporating the contents of the bottles. "Where does it come from?" he asked, and then directed his attention to the metal disks ing its third annual Convention in this city.

He was a delegate from New York, and his appearance was representative of the majority which confine a rubber washer in the necks of the bottles. He found two grades of these of the rnembers of the association that appeared at the Convention yesterday. The assostoppers. One grade bore the stamp of the

When John M. Atherton of Louisville, Ky., When John M. Atherton of Louisville, Ky., President of the association, walked into the hall there was a round of applause. In calling the defectales to order, he said: "You have before you an important work. The National almost wholly of lead, the proportion of that metal being $3.6 per cent. In making a report of the case to the Board of Health, Dr. Herold said:

"Under the circumstances it is obvious what the result would be when the soda water and stopper were brought into contact. The excess of carbonic seid would act upon the stopper and form an insoluble carbonate of lead. This can be demonstrated by examining the stoppera. A white deposit will be found upon that part of the stopper which comes in contact with the soda water. This is the carbonate of lead referred to. Now, the action of the carbonate of lead referred to. Now, the action of the carbonate acid continues and redissolves the carbonate, and thus what was at first an inocurous earbonate becomes a bi-carbonate of lead. This, an accumulative poison, taken into the system, would, were one to drink a a very few bottles of soda each day impregnated with it, soon produce marked symptoms of lead poisoning."

Dr. Herold took also a dozen new bottles and filled them with aqueduct water, and another dozen and had them filled with carbonated water. The bottles were left lying on their sides for two days, and then examined. The result was as follows: One dozen bottles of aqueduct water contained 0.39 grains of metallic lead, and the dozen bottles of distilled water charged with carbonic acid gas revealed 0.46 grains. These bottles were stopped with the best grade of stoppers, and the Doctor thinks the showing would have been much greater had the bottles with the cheaper grade of stoppers been used, and also that in the experiment he tried the result would have been much more striking if the bottles had been exposed to the action of the liquids greater leasth of the cooler pipes in saloens, and found that many of them were of pure lead instead of block tin. This, he said, was a standing menace to health, as many cases of poisoning had been traced directly to beer drawn through lead pipes. He thinks that there is little danger to be apprehended from drinking squeduct water d

INDIAN POW-WOWS. The Commission Encouraged by Their Reception Among the Lower Brule Stone.

LOWER BRULE AGENCY, Sept. 11 .- The results of yesterday's meeting were favorable At least the big chief Iron Nation has spoken, and although he merely presented testimonials of his past good conduct and his especially keen foresight in opposing the bill of 1882, his manner toward the Commission lost the sternness of last week, and his few words were for peace. "I hate," he said, "more than any-thing under heaven this making of clubs and coming into council with threats."

Judge Wright in simple, pointed language presented the substance of the bill as the Indians had requested. The Rev. Mr. Cleve-Indians had requested. The Rev. Mr. Cleve-land, after acknowledging fully the power for good exerted by Iron Nation in 1882, tried to show him and the others how impracticable it would be for the very men who had upheld them then, when all of the Sloux with the ex-ception of their tribe had signed away their land for 25,000 cattle, to make and help to pass a bill detrimental to them. "When these men tell you that if you refuse to listen to this bill your future is very dark, you should believe them."

annual Convention hold in Cincinnati, We have an active nembership of 700, which includes the leading merchante and distillers of the country. Furthermore, we are rapidly growing. Our work has been devoted mainly to bublishing tracts and pamphlets explaining out the tween six and seven millions of pamphlets contacting arguments on the prohibition, local option, and high license issues. As far as possible we have attempted to bring about onen discussion, for we thus found the opportunity to show the errors and misstatements in the declarations of our enemies that have tor so many years gone uncontradicted. And I will say further to you, that we have been exceedingly careful in our expenditures. Not a dollar of our money has been expenditures. Not a dollar of our money has been spent about any capital while any Legislature was in session. Not a dollar of our money has been expenditures. Not a dollar of our money has been expenditures. Not a dollar of our money has been expenditures. Not a dollar of our money has been expenditures. Not a dollar of our business and about any capital while any Legislature was in session. Not a dollar of our business and about us were brought before the people, all the conservative voters would be with us. I am sure the association will lose nothing by the proper regulation of the liquor traffic, or by an open and manly discussion of the guestions and issues arising out of it. The impression can be and must be erased. I should recommend that we send out fifty million pamphlets defining our standpoint, instead of only six million. I are certain the pamphlets defining our standpoint, instead of only six million, and certain the pamphlets defining our standpoint, instead of only six million. I are certain the pamphlets defining our standpoint, instead of only six million. I are certain the pamphlets defining our standpoint instead of only six million. I are certain the pamphlets defining our standpoint instead of only six million. I are certain the pamphlets defining the property as any your future is very dark, you should believe them."

Three Indians opposed to the bill made rambling speeches, which were loudly "howed" by their followers. Big Mane, one of the chiefs and an acknowledged leader, told an Indian fable. As is usual in Indian stories the moral was left to point itself, but the Indian, the Government, and the relative position of each to the other was easily discerned. Medicine Buil, the second chief, said the Indians want a title to their lands. "Have our lands surveyed. Give us our titles, and we will sign unanimously." He was applauded, and closed his speech by suggesting beef, and the meeting adjourned. Friends of the bill consider that the ice is well broken. It remains to verify the list, and one hundred are ready to step forward and sign. In private council the Indians divide, Iron Nation leads one side, and he is evidently weakening a little. Big Mane, Medicine Bull, Standing Cloud, and Bull Head, all leading chiefs, head the list of signers. Medicine Bull speaks more for the crowd than for himself, and opens the way for others to have their say. There will be good speechs by the young men, but, Indian like, they was for their elders. Michard Coppinger; Begins a Fatal Quarrel with His Wife in Bed. Frank Coppinger, aged 37, and his brother Richard Coppinger, aged 35, live with their wives and families in adjoining apartments in a house in Monroe avenue. New Brighton, S. L. The wives have never been able to get along together. A short time ago Frank's wife had his brother Bichard's wife arrested and bound over to keep the peace. About midnight of Monday, after both families had retired, Richard and his wife got into a quarrel, in which they used the names of Frank and his wife. This awoke Frank and his family, and Frank went over to his brother's apartments to see what was the matter. He got into the quarrel, Daniel Shay, Massachusetta: J. M. Hibrina Virinia: W. N. Hobart Ohio: W. B. Le Farie, Illinois; Julius Haegle, District of Columbia.

A rumor that came from the far West to the effect that the National Protective Association intended to contribute $20,000 to the Republican campaign fund reached the Convention, and became the subject of derisive laughter.

"This association is not, in any sense, political," said President Atherton. "The members are about equally divided between the two parties, and we have no finterest as an association in the success of either. We will not contribute a dollar to either. He replied that he did not know, but that if any Prohibitionists any likelihood of the Convention. He replied that he did not know, but that if any Prohibitionists came there to discuss the issues connected with the liquor traffic he should be in favor of letting them say what they pleased.

The Convention adjourned to meet at 10 A. M. to-day, when the officers for the ensuing year will be elected and there will be a discussion of a general license law. All matters relating to the wholesale liquor business will be considered, and it is probable that a strict regulation of the sale of liquors will be the principal feature of the license law that will be recommended. The Convention will probably finish with its business to-day. In the evening the delegates will attend a banquet at Delmonloo's, tendered to them by the wholesale wine and liquor merchants of New York. went over to his brother's apartments to see what was the matter. He got into the quarrel, and his wife went over to help him out, and the whole four then ritched into one another. During the mélée Richard, who was formerly a special policeman, got a long night club and dealt his brother Frank a blow on the side of his head with it. Before he could strike him again Frank's wife had wrested the club from his hands. As soon as Frank recovered from the blow he drew a large pocket knile and stabbed his brother live times, once within a quarter of an inch of the heart.

The wounded man's wife raised the window and screamed "Murder!" When a policeman arrived he found litchard lying face down in a pool of blood, while his wife sat on the bed screaming and crying. Frank and his wife had retired to their apartments. Richard's wounds are said to be mortal. If he revives sufficiently his ante-mortem statement will be taken. Inspector Cobb arrested Frank, and he was taken to the North Shore police station, where the wound on the side of his head inflicted by his brother's club was dressed.

A few months ago a Mrs. Meyers, who owns the house occupied by the brothers, died, leaving the property and some money. Frank's wife attended her during her illness, and when she died they moved into the house to take care of it. Subsequently they invited Richard and his family to occupy the house along with them. It is said that the quarrel was the outcome of a feeling of jealousy between them as to the final disposal of the property.

He was held for examination. The property stolen from Mr. Merch was pawned by the prisoner. The pawn clerks identified him. Mr. Merch valued the articles at $800. to Picked Up, and Comes Back to New York on the Big Norwegian Back Nor. Capt. William A. Andrews, who started rom Boston barbor on June 18 last to cross he Atlantic Ocean to Queenstown in a dory so called, named the Dark Secret, has made a fizzle of the adventure, and has come back to New York in a big bark. He was frightened out of continuing the voyage by a narrow escape which he had from foundering in the maw of a sea serpent or some such monster which appeared four days before he was picked up.

The vessel in which the Captain undertook to make the voyage was probably smaller than any boat that ever made such a passage. It was a very deep-modelled whaleboat, 14 feet 9 inches long, 5 feet wide, and about 3 feet deep, It was decked over fore and aft except a cockpit, where he sat to steer. There was a small house amidships that could be entered by a scuttle, and thither the Captain went when he wanted to sleep. The boat had a single mastfitted with a lateen sail. It had a number of compartments filled with cork, and was fitted with an iron shoe on the keel to give it stability. With a stock of provisions supposed to be Yesterday the Norwegian ship Nor, Capt. Bjonness, came into this harbor bringing Capt. Andrews and his whaleboat as passenger and freight. The Captain had not been heard from since Aug. 10, and those who had taken any interest in the foolbardy adventure had begun to think that the Dark Secret had foundered in a gale. The Dark Secret was sighted by Capt. Bjonness on Sunday, Aug. 19, at 11 o'clock in the morning. She was to windward of the Nor and seeing so small a craft adrift the Nor was hove to, and Capt, Andrews sailed down to her and came alongside. The solitary mariner asked first for the latitude and longitude, and was told that he was in latitude 46°, 18', and longtitude 39°, 50', or about fifty miles more than half way across from Boston to Queens-town. Then he told Capt. Bjonness who he was and whither bound, and he added that he had not had a warm meal in the sixty-two days that he had been affoat. As it was then about dinner time Capt. Bjonness invited him to have that he had been afloat. As it was then about dinner time Capt. Bjonness invited him to have a square meal on the Nor, and the invitation was promptly accepted. He remarked as he got on deck that his waistband was just soven inches too long for him, and his appetite at dinner. Capt. Bjonness says, seemed to justify the statement.

After dinner he asked Capt. Bjonness to take him and his whaleboat to New York, and the request was granted. He said that he did not feel able to continue the journey, and, since his olied clothing was ragged and his sea boots had holes in them, worn there by constantly bracing his feet against the sides of the cockpit. Capt. Bjonness thought the statement a reasonable one, so, after getting the food and other stuff out of the whaleboat's cabin, she was hoisted on deck and put in chocks on the poop deck.

That night, under the influence of a good supper, Capt. Andrews confided to Carisen, one of the crew who was on lookout, that the main reason for abandoning the voyage was that on the Wednesday preceding, when in latitude 45° 10° and longitude 41° 20°, he saw a monster with a head very like a serpent swimming along to leeward. Its head and perhaps six or seven feet of its neck were out of water, but the head was only two or three feet above the water. It was swimming at from 2½ to 3 miles an hour and heading east. It did not offer to molest: the Dark Secret, but, nevertheless, Capt. Andrews was so much startled by it that he decided to take passage on a larger craft at the lirst opportunity. Afterward, Carlsen says, Capt. Andrews was so much startled by it that he decided to take passage on a larger craft at the lirst opportunity. Afterward, Carlsen says, Capt. Capt. Andrews crossed the ocean from Boston with a brother in a boat called the Nautilus in 1878. They made the trip in forty-five daya. This trip was so much slower partly because while the Captain slept he had to take in sail and ride to a drag. With a crew of two she could be kept under way continually. KILLED WHILE EXHORIING.

A Member of the Salvation Army fift while Looking for Converts. Edward Bellvive, fireman on the tugboat Chandar, which carries freight between this city and South Norwalk, was arrested yesterday by Detective Sergeant Lawler for manslaughter on a telegraphic order from William Vallmar, Chief of Police of South Norwalk, Bellvive killed John Tuttle. a colored switchman on the New York, New Haven and Hart-ford Railroad. The tugboat arrived at Pier 49, East River, yesterday afternoon, and Bellvive was taken to Police Headquarters. He is 30 was taken to Police Headquarters. He is 30 years old.

On Monday night, while the tug was lying at Wilson's Point, South Norwalk, Tuttle, who was laine and walked with a cane, went aboard looking for recruits for the Salvation Army, of which he was an especially fervid member. The mate ordered him ashore, and Bellvive accidentally kicked his cane as he was leaving the tug. This aroused the colored Salvationist, who struck the fireman in the face with the stick. Hellvive seized a coal shovel and struck Tuttle over the head with it. Tuttle died at his home during the night from a fractured skull. When arrested yesterday Bellvive was unaware of the negro's death.

Wanten's Take Him at the State Prison. Ludwig Schaefer was convicted of grand larceny in March last and sentenced to State prison for two years and six months. He was taken before Recorder Smyth yesterday on an application by the Dis-trict Attorney for a resentence. Schaefer hasn't been imprisoned in State prison. He has been detained in the Tombs pending appeal. The appeal wont against the Tombs pending appeal. The appeal went against him, and when he was taken to Sing Sing. Warden Birvsh refused to receive him as a prisoner on the ground that his sentence would not expire between the months of March and November. 1891, as required by law. The Warden directed the Deputy sheriff in charge of Schaefer to have him resentenced.

Recorder Simyth refused to resentence Schaefer. The time Schaefer has passed in the Tombs since his sentence the Recorder said could not be counted in his favor, and he would have to be taken back to serve out the full stern. If the Warden should again refuse to receive him then the deputy, the Recorder said should leave Schaefer in prison and let the Warden take the consequences of ceming into collision with the law.

A Stranger Jumped on the Track. KINGSTON, N. Y.. Sept. 11.—An unknown man committed deliberate suicide to-day near Rosendale, sine miles from here, by throwing himself in front of a nine miles from here, by throwing himself in front of a fast passenger train. His clothes were of the latest style, and included a light fall overcoat. He was apparently about 35 years of age, dark bair and side whickers, and weighed about 170 pounds. The letters "J. H." were on his cuff buttons. From a diary in his pocket it was learned that he had recently visited the Lake Minnswasta House, in the Sanwasquan Mountains, Trey, and States Island. A Moravian prayer book, containing memorands and also the names "Uncle Levi of Troy" and "Mr. and Mrz Vegfer of Staten Island," were on his persen. A despatch received to-night says that the man is believed to be Jason Vandemark, brother of Willett J. Vandemark, ex-Republican Assemblyman from the second Ulster district.
